The Ministerial crisis at Madrid continues.

The King of Fransis was slightly better, but his condition is still very oritical.

The despatches from India state that Gen. Nitchloon had defeased the rebels at Majaghar with the loss of their guns. Gen. Havelock had also defeated the rebels; near Bithoor, on the 16th of Angust. The garrison at Lucknow made a gallant and victorious sortic, capturing the guns of the mutineers and also a supply therefore, sympathiese much more with the Georgia and Mississippl resolutions, in this connection than is generally supposed.

A very strong effect will be made next Congress to abolish the Court of Claims on the ground of its being an unnecessary expense to claimants—the Court having no final jurisdiction in the settlement of any case, and Congress paying no attention to its decisions.

The War Department is in receipt of despatches from the Utah Expedition; the first received since their departure from Fort Leavenworth. Considerable uneasinest had been entertained by the Department respecting these troops. The despatch received to-day is from Ideat. S. B. Alexander, commanding Tenth Infantry. He says:

I respectfully submit the following remarks upon the march of the eight companies of the Tenth Infantry under my command from Fort Leavenworth to this place—a distance of six hundred and twenty-five miles. The battalies started from Fort Leavenworth on the 13th of July, and being composed mainly of recruits, the length of the marches for the first four or five days was inconsiderable, not exceeding ten miles. The mea, however, became accustomed to marching very soon, and unless the heat was powerful very few fell. The march across the prairie country from Fort Leavenworth to the Platte River was made within the time allowed by General Harney's orders, and was, perhaps, the most except from loss and accident ever knows. With a train of minety-seven wagons and over six hundred animals, but five mules have been lost—one by straying and four by death—and not a wagon has been broken. The journey along the Platte was one of great eace, as the road is good and grass abundant everywhere. The men and animals improved in strength remarkably. The sick report has never exceeded twenty, and has averaged twelve. This, in a command of five handred, is very small. No serious sickness has prevaided, though four cases of billious fever, produced by great alterations of temperature and mlasma of the Platte bottom, have occurred.
